Foreword

The research grants programs of the National Institutes of Health, Public Health Service, have been made possible largely through enthusiastic Congressional support. They have been expanded rapidly within the past decade, from a fiscal 1951 appropriation of $17,129,554 for 1,695 research projects, to a 1961 level of $280,900,000 with over 13,500 projects underway.

The magnitude of the program has led naturally to a demand for a catalogue of the kind and variety of projects supported. Such information is desirable not only for the use of the scientific community, but also for guidance of the program within the Federal Government. Toward meeting this demand, the Division of Research Grants begins, with this issue, annual publication of a subject-matter index covering all NIH grant-supported research in the preceding fiscal year.

APPENDIX	593

Preface

This Index illustrates the vast scope of medical research supported by the grants programs of the Public Health Service. The preparation of an index of this magnitude involves many complex problems, basic among which is the determination of the indexing system to be used in analyzing the information. In preparing this volume, the staff attempted to develop indexing procedures that are compatible with the photographic process selected for reproduction of the current book and yet adaptable to future data-processing requirements.

"Keyword" Indexing

The information in this volume is indexed under approximately 7,000 single word ("keyword") headings and phrases alphabetically arranged. The keywords were derived from analyses of more than 14,000 summaries of current PHS-supported projects. The summaries were prepared by the principal investigator of each project to describe research for which the investigator received Public Health support during fiscal year 1961. From each summary the professional staff of the Division of Research Grants selected an average of eight specific keyword terms to represent the "what," "where," "why," and "how" of each scientist's investigation. The number of terms per abstract varied in proportion to the amount of detailed information contained in the source documents.

The conventional keyword method of indexing is a strict alphabetical arrangement of subject headings. In this volume, a modification of the conventional method has been made in order to group certain categories of information such as anatomical sites. These groupings appear as subheadings under the main term, but each subheading also appears in primary alphabetical sequence to indicate the exact location of the information in the Index. For example, "optic nerve" occurs in alphabetical sequence under "O" with the notation that entries pertaining to it will be found under "nervous system," subheading "optic nerve."

Other general classification terms (e.g., "bacterial diseases") are used in this Index (a) when the content of the document that is indexed does not permit use of a more specific term; and (b) when the use of a general term permits extensive cross-referencing which enables the reader to compose groups according to his particular need. For example, for an inclusive list of all current PHS-supported research on bacterial diseases, a person would first refer to "bacterial diseases" for general work, and then to each of the subjects listed as cross-references under that heading: anthrax, bacterial meningitis, botulism, brucellosis, cholera, diphtheria, etc.

Project Numbers and Titles

Under each "keyword" heading in the Index the titles of the investigators' summaries are arranged numerically by the PHS number assigned to each research project. The letter prefix of the project number corresponds to the disease-oriented interests of the Institute or Division which supported the research; e.g., allergy; arthritis; cancer; dental; heart. A complete explanation of the project number prefixes is given in the Glossary of Abbreviations.

In the Appendix the number identifying any given project is followed by (1) the name and address of the principal investigator; (2) references to 1961 publications creditable to the research project; and (b) the name of the PHS advisory panel that gave the project technical review when the grant was applied for.

Additional Information Available on Request

Entries under some subject headings were deleted during the editing process primarily to conserve printed space. For the most part, the omitted items pertain to methods and materials used routinely in scientific research.

Such information is, however, available upon request from the Research Documentation Section, Division of Research Grants, National Institutes of Health, as indicated by the notation under the subject headings from which items were deleted.

Plans for the Fiscal Year 1962 Research Grants Index

Unlike the sample index published last year, in which "keyword" modifiers or "descriptors" are listed under the subject headings, the 1961 volume uses titles of grants. The Index next year (fiscal year 1962) will again use modifiers or "descriptors" as illustrated in the sample volume. Specific descriptors convey more concise information than is possible with project titles, but descriptor indexing requires more professional time and training than were available for the preparation of the present Index.

Next year's publication will contain an alphabetical investigator appendix, in addition to the grant number appendix as found in the present book. Several types of source documents will be analyzed and indexed for the 1962 issue and before publication each grantee will be furnished with a sample copy of the indexing proposed for his particular grant for his approval. In addition, some vocabulary revisions will be made as a result of suggestions from scientists who have reviewed our sample index, together with revisions evolving from the valuable experience that the staff has gained in the preparation of this issue. Any further suggestions which will enhance the accuracy and usefulness of succeeding volumes will be welcome.

Glossary of Abbreviations

Grant No. The Institute or Division supporting a project is indicated in the listing by the initial code letter which forms part of the grant number. These code letters denote the following Institute or Division interests:

A—Arthritis and Metabolic Diseases
B—Neurological Diseases and Blindness
C—Cancer
D—Dental Research
E—Allergy and Infectious Diseases
G—General Medical Sciences
H—Heart
K—Water Pollution
M—Mental Health
S—Air Pollution
T—Translation
W—Hospital Research Facilities

In the Appendix some of the grant numbers are followed by the suffixes "C" and "S", which indicate "continuation" and "supplement," respectively. When a numeral follows one of these suffixes it indicates the ordinal number of the action. Thus, C3 means third continuation year, and S1 means first supplement to the grant as specified by the preceding symbols. In the Index portion of this volume all suffixes have been omitted in order to conserve space. For example, "A–44C9" in the Appendix appears as "A–44" in the Index.

Studies on steroid ring A dehydrogenases A-4687
Growth and developmental processes in simple slime molds C-2119
Growth and inheritance in bacteriophage C-2158
Cell growth, division, metabolism and related problems C-3402
Proliferation and differentiation in Physarum C-3584
Oral microorganisms in radiation sickness C-3828
Biological effects of high energy radiations C-4051
Protozoal screening methods for cancer chemotherapy CY-4282
Cellular organization and growth in Chlorella C-4932
Studies of oral ecology D-175
Growth and metabolism of an oral leptotrichia D-370
Antimicrobial substances in saliva and oral tissues D-1201
Growth requirements of organisms indigenous to man D-1399
Saliva and oral flora interrelationships D-1402
Development of the oral flora of the infant and child D-1423
Adaptation of protozoa to metabolic inhibitors E-850
Cytopathogenic agents in respiratory disease E-1131
Biochemical studies of lysogenic microorganisms E-1181
Studies on mechanism of bacterial mutation E-1314
Normal and abnormal growth in bacteria E-1391
Toxic properties of the blue-green algae E-1429
Herpes simplex in tissue culture E-1439
Study of L forms of group A, beta hemolytic streptococci E-1514
Nutrition and virulence of Leptospira pomona E-1664
Comparative biochemistry of bacterial growth phases E-1935
Experimental combined viral and bacterial infections E-1990
Nucleic acids of virus infected cells E-2032
Steroids, their function and degradation in bacteria E-2081
Fate of gibberellic acid and soil microbial activity E-2083
Protein toxin synthesis in Clostridium tetani E-2088
Study of selective media for anaerobic bacteria E-2100
Cellular mechanisms of growth control in bacteria E-2116
Studies of influenza infected cells E-2156
Ergothioneine in relation to M. tuberculosis E-2236
Chelating agents and the microbial cell E-2252
Nucleic acid changes in virus-infected human cells E-2432
Studies on gram negative pathogenic bacteria E-2463
Effects of antibiotics on lactic acid cultures E-2486
Characterization of subcellular particles E-2573
Leptospira studies E-2578
The spores of thermophilic bacilli E-2596
Ecological factors in food borne disease E-2603
Study of continuous microbial culture E-2615
Comparative biochemistry of autotrophic metabolism E-2640
Metabolic studies on sulfate reducing bacteria E-2646

Nutrition of some pleuropneumonia-like organisms E-2658
Studies on experimental staphylococcal infections E-2659
Action of anti-phage agents on lysogenic staphylococci E-2714
Physiological studies of bacterial growth E-2744
Enzymatic patterns in virulent staphylococci E-2808
Biochemical aspects of bacterial growth and metabolism E-2812
Relationships of some psittacosis group viruses E-2822
The rate of protein synthesis in intact organisms E-2839
Physiology of Mycobacterium tuberculosis E-2873
Studies on cholera E-2897
Structure and growth abnormalities of bacteria E-2964
Chemistry of microbial growth E-2967
Intracellular regulation of enzyme synthesis E-2971
Metabolism of a viral chemical indicator system E-2983
Growth stimulation of the methane bacteria E-3015
Aerobic cholesterol metabolism by certain soil microbes E-3037
Growth, structure and genetic functions of viruses E-3038
Electron transport in anaerobes E-3046
Studies on the yeast-like fungi of the genus Candida E-3068
Antibiotic biosynthesis by streptomycetes E-3119
Growth and metabolism of meningopneumonitis E-3130
Influence of anthocyanins on microbial activities E-3156
Chemostat studies of genetic processes in yeast E-3221
Pertussis diagnosis by fluorescent antibody staining E-3227
A study of viruses of human female genital tract E-3258
Anaplasmosis of cattle E-3315
Environmental effect on respiration of mycobacteria E-3324
Staphylococcus aureus as a competitor ... E-3326
Carbohydrate metabolism in rumen micro-organisms E-3418
Kinetics of bacterial growth in continuous culture E-3588
Studies on continuous fermentation E-3629
Cultivation of the bacillus of leprosy E-3636
Peptides of unnatural amino acids E-3710
Growth of E. histolytica in carbon dioxide--bicarbonate media E-3826
Growth effects of traces of zinc and carbon monoxide mycobacteria E-3841
Composition of various strains of Trichophyton mentagrophytes E-3868
Properties of canine distemper virus E-3873
Permeability of Escherichia coli to macromolecules E-3878
Comparative biochemistry of bacterial growth phases E-3911
Biologic specialization on phytopathogenic fungi E-3964
Dissociation of M. tuberculosis E-4001
Significance of Beggiatoa in polluted waters G-4770
Study of irradiated cells G-5028
Studies and function of complex nucleotides G-5672
Control of protein synthesis and growth by feedback G-6059
